PORT ARTHUR A PAWN IN K. C. S. GAME OF DOLLARS

Another head of a great railway system has come forth in defense of Port Arthur.

This time it is C. E. Schaff, president of the M. K. & T., a great southwestern railway line serving three states. So far as Port Arthur is concerned, however, the railroad might just as well have been never built. There is a logical reason for this.

Once again blame may be laid at the doors of the K. C. S. whose dictatorship of the rate situation which renders it unprofitable to shippers on other lines to consign goods to this port effectually maroons Port Arthur from a vast territory properly ours.

Col. R. C. Duff has declared that K. C. S. officials have turned his efforts to extend his W. B. T. & S. railroad from Livingston to Port Arthur an "immoral" proposition. Col. Duff has no right, this attitude holds, to encroach upon K. C. S. profits in the 200, 300, 400 and 500 per cent a year class.

"Keep off, and no trespassing," is the sign the K. C. S. has erected in Port Arthur. It might add that "trespassers" will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. This in effect is what the joint Texas railroad and Interstate Commerce commission hearings at Austin February 19 is to mean.

It is "immoral" for Port Arthur to profit by a railroad line which will be the keystone to a territory linking us with 24,000 miles of producing territory.

It is "immoral" for any one to seek to break up a monopolistic combine which is fattening itself at the expense of Port Arthur's future.

It is "immoral" for Col. Duff to reveal figures from the K. C. S.'s own auditor's sworn report showing profits of $2,933,527 on only $100,000 capital stock in eight years of operation, profits so fat that the Texarkana & Fort Smith link of the K. C. S. is known to the railroad world as the railroad gold mine of America.

"The proposed extension intersects an excellent territory in which the new construction should substantially stimulate the development of new industries, and would afford for exportable products, as well as commodities inbound through the ports of the Sabine district, the shortest route to and from those ports and from the interior of Texas," President Schaff says.

Read that again. It is highly important. It confirms, from a leading figure of the railroad world, the beliefs of farsighted Port Arthur business men. It confirms the soundness of Col. Duff's extension project. It confirms claims made here and elsewhere that until this is done Port Arthur has no future as a principal American port, and that is what we are fighting for and must continue to fight for, tooth and nail, until we win our economic freedom.

Conan Doyle stirs up a hornet's nest in Indiana by saying that James Whitecomb Riley, the greatest poet of childhood in his generation, cared nothing for children—in fact was bored by them. Some psychologists claim that writers do their best work on subjects they're not in sympathy with, just as many a drunk has given fine "dry" lectures.

Riley, however, adored children—so much that he often affected a dislike for them, to conceal a sentiment so keenly developed in him that he was almost ashamed of it. Many a man has tears in his eyes while he's blustering his disdain for something emotional.

PRIDE DOOMS TUB

If the modern woman keeps on, according to a Port Arthur renting agent, there won't be a washtub left in 25 years, and maybe it won't take that long.

"It's got so," he said, "they're not putting them in new apartments. The tubs go in one corner of the cellar known as a laundry. And it's all the woman's fault. For where will you find a modern woman who will use a wash tub? The few things she has to wash out at home—for she sends virtually everything but her silk things to the laundry—she washes in the bathroom basin, bending over the washtub, she says, hurts her back. She means it hurts her pride.

"The kitchen washtubs have fallen to a variety of uses. The most common one at present in the smaller apartments is in connection with a kitchenette arrangement. For the kitchen of some of the smaller apartments have been changed over into what they call dining alcoves. They have taken the old tubs and made a soft modified ice box out of them. The cover of the tubs has a one or two burner gas stove fastened to it. This system has its advantages in space saving, but it also has its disadvantages. For imagine having to go into the ice box for some forgotten ingredient in the middle of cooking dinner, when the kitchen stove is fastened to the ice box cover. You simply have to get everything out first.

"The tub ice box has the advantage too of having no ice pan to empty, the need of coming out down the old drain. But tubs are going and even the kitchenette ones will follow soon."

Rubbers or half-rubbers? This is the question facing men who seek to protect themselves from wet pavements. It always has been claimed that the half-rubbers are the more classy, shoe clerks say.

Many a man's most distasteful job is to put up the clothesline for friend wife before he leaves for work on Monday morning. One says that he's lucky when he doesn't have to gather in the clothes in the evening.

JINX IN LICENSE NUMBER FATAL

The axiom "Nothing is impossible" was brought into the world before the birth of the automobile tag. At least it hasn't been in working order since.

It may sound paradoxical but it is true that although nobody wants automobile license tags everybody wants the same license number.

Superstition may enter into the situation in many instances, and in others it may be a matter of whim or hobby, but the fact remains that many finding the annual automobile license fee compulsory and unavoidable are claiming the little liberty of arbitrarily deciding what license number will herald the arrival and departure of the family car.

This general discrimination in license numbers is of no small consequence to state authorities responsible for their distribution.

The fact that only a few numbers are in favor might simplify the matter if there were more than one of each of these popular numerals.

Then which there are no more unpopular license numbers are the numbers 13 and its several combinations.

There is many a good driver who asks the highway department of his or her state not to send number 13 alone or in combination with other numerals, but in every commonwealth there is some daring soul who in defiance to Dame Superstition and her terrible vengeance, with deliberation and premeditation, applies in writing and over his personal signature for license 13 or 1313 or even 131313, which latter is hard luck three times over in the imagination of the believers in signs.

Whim and hobby probably play a larger part than superstition in the grand drawing for automobile licenses. First among these are the motorists who want the same number they had last year. Perhaps they drove through 1913 without a scratched fender and anticipate as good luck in 1924 if they drive between license plates of the same numeral.

"Please send me number so-and-so because it corresponds with my house number," is the postscript on many motor applications. Or perhaps it is a numeral to correspond with the telephone number.

It would be exaggerating the size of the United States to infer that all the applicants for license numbers 7 and 11 are ex-servicemen.

Automobiles numbered 23 by request are not being subjected to any particular scrutiny by the speed cops just because that numeral was once popularly associated with the descriptive "skiddoo."

There may be justification for some of the special license number requests, but in the opinion of the registration clerks there ought to be a law against the bobbed haired Shebas who ask for a six and seven-eighths license number to match the size of her sheik's brown derby or a numeral to correspond with the number of her lap dog's license.

You can always tell a poker enthusiast by his license application and state officials cannot ignore his pitiful plea for a "straight," "full-house," four "aces" or "six of a kind."

But the only instance where there is reason in all this madness is the motorist who orders a license with as many digits as they make them, with no two numerals alike and no sequence. He has probably had experience with those uniformed chaps who make license-number reading a business and realizes the advantage of a complicated number in a "speedy" pinch.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. C. C. Robinson

EFFECTS OF FEAR

The effect of fear on the physical condition of the body is different in many types or characters of persons. There is, however, a direct psychophysiological relation between fear and health.

Fear in man is caused by outside influences acting on the brain, spinal cord and nervous system. In many cases, it reduces the one afflicted to a condition of almost helplessness and loss of any real determining action in life's battle.

Fear of his fellow men, fear of the loss of occupation and consequent poverty, fear of disease with partial or total loss of body efficiency, and fear of death, are some of the causes which determine your health condition.

Then there is the fear of some tyrant or loss in the business situation that oftentimes, from continued nagging or spying supervision, almost drives one to distraction and a nervous wreck. And there is the fear of social disapproval in women.

Fear is also one of the determining factors in self-preservation, the first law of man. It is in this case not morbid. It is morbid only when it improves in early childhood and are retained and carried through life, greatly to the detriment of health and individual success. "We lose so often by failing to attempt."

In another case the foundation of fear may sometimes be the result of the psychological state of the body. When there is a physical exhaustion, the tissues respond inadequately to situations requiring powerful and rapid reaction. The consciousness of this produces an unwillingness to face such situations, hence diffidence, distrustfulness or the "don't-care" spirit. In this condition of oft repeated, the individual will become distrustful of himself. In this way, timorousness, diffidence and fear develop in the nourished children, and in the adult.

Do not try to overcome fear by direct opposition. Lough your fear away or induce some other phase of activity to arouse interest. Don't depend on neighbors or others for opinions. Little as one may realize it, your actions are in this situation the product of fear.

Resolve to be thyself and know that he who finds himself loses his fear.

THIS LITTLE OLD WORLD

WASHINGTON
BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Scouring a luscious scandal just around the corner, which promised to involve a lot of the capital's official and social dignitaries.

Washington has been enjoying a real holiday thrill over the mysterious disappearance of an alleged "chose list."

The list, first announced as captured in the possession of one of the capital's elite back purveyors, who fell into Roy H. Hunt's net, seemingly vanished into thin air immediately after a Washington paper headlined the fact that it included the names, as patrons, of at least two members of the cabinet, several members of both house and senate and many persons of prominence. Despite disclaimers, the man in the street still believes such a list existed.

The situation seems certain to add ammunition for the fight for modification of the Volstead enforcement act. If such a list should finally be forced out of hiding, it will be hailed as a flagstaff and make the battle flag of the forces demanding modification. The claim will be that the present act is unenforceable, that it only makes lawbreakers in all ranks of society and undermines rather than strengthens both moral and social progress.

A real test in congress on the wet and dry issue is scarcely to be expected at this session, however. Manoeuvring as does develop will be largely preparatory to the modification campaign to be carried on during the congressional election and in the next congress. Some of the strange results that are possible in this contest are forecast by the election last year of Meyer Jacobstein, a democrat, in the thirty-eighth New York district, long safely republican.

"A democrat and a dry Hebrew beat a wet Christian in a republican stronghold."

A somewhat similar situation existed in the eighteenth Pennsylvania district, which sent Edward M. Reers to congress, except that it did not involve a change in the district's allegiance to the C. O. P.

Reers' decision, his name, is a dry. One day while passing out his cards, he noticed a man read one, pause and with a gesture of reminiscence draw the back of his wrist lingeringly across his lips.

"Reers, Reers," the fellow read, dwelling earnestly on the name. "Now, Mister Reers, are you a one-half of 1 per cent, or do you stand for a real kick?"

"I am dry," Reers answered promptly.

"So am I," said the voter, "but not like you. I'm doing that, but I'm not going to vote for you just because your name's Reers. I'm going to vote for a drink."

Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg, wife of the late American ambassador to Great Britain, will be tonight disappeared if she made in obtaining in London that product of her home state, Minnesota, which a license agent told us all good housewives will use occasionally if not now.

One of Mrs. Kellogg's household demands is for good, old-fashioned, homemade bread, produced from a certain famous, throughout Minnesota, which requires the particular flour from the particular place of that particular state.

Since Minneapolis exports large quantities of the proper flour from Minnesota's wheat, she expects to be able to obtain the right ingredients for her favorite loaves in London. And if she cannot get a rock who will follow her traditions on making bread and baking the bread, which is in Washington say, she will be shell ship out to the kitchen and occasionally herself to have a pan or two.

Your Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments

LOW PRICES FOR HIGH GRADE BONDS IS A BUYING OPPORTUNITY

AVERAGE PRICE OF BONDS

Low prices for high grade bonds, such as occurred in 1920, are really opportunities for buying rather than cause for alarm.

The true investor buys for income, and because he feels sure that the bond will be redeemed at its face value when it matures.

However, any investor who buys long term government bonds or any other long term bond must expect to see prices of these bonds fluctuate within relatively wide limits over a period of years.

He never needs to be alarmed by price fluctuations though, unless his bond declines rapidly against the general trend of the market, which would indicate that the value of the security behind it had suffered.

When the price of all high grade bonds fall, as in 1920, there is no cause for alarm. On the other hand, it is really an opportunity to buy at bargain prices.

RATTLERS
To disprove a generally accepted idea, some people would be willing to travel to the "ends of the earth" and devote a whole lifetime to it. We live in an age of iconoclasm—and a good thing, for much of our knowledge is inherited and false, and time to review.

A museum official has just proved the ancient law about rattles always giving warning before it strikes. The museum man collected 45 desert diamond rattlers near Tucson, Arizona, and only five of them ratted a warning when approached.

MATCH

Every day the people of the world fight nearly 12 billion matches, or seven for every man, woman and child. We'd always had a heavy notion that match-making was a small industry, compared with the major activities. So it surprised us to learn that the world's people use 200 million dollars a year for matches. And that here in the United States alone 20 million dollars is invested in match-making equipment.

Oh, well, nearly every man is an ignoramus outside his own business.

"What is the solution, Lee?" He had buried his face in his hands. "There is none, I suppose. Unless you have the courage to drive down to the City Hall and marry me . . . and—he lifted his head with faint gleam of hope—remember that you are young again. That you have many years to live. You are a woman. Can you go through life without love?"

"Far better than with it. Love is a very old story to me," she said deliberately. "It could never be to me again the significant thing it is even to the woman of middle age, much less to the young. And now—with a world falling to ruins—in the most critical period of its history—to imagine that love has any but a passing significance—Oh, no, my friend. Oh, no! Let those women who have it in their power to repopulate the earth which has lost so many millions of its sons cherish that delusion of the supreme importance of love; but not I! I have had my dream, but it is over. If we had met in Vienna it would never have claimed me at all. In New York one may be serious in the romantic manner when one is temporarily free from care, but seriousness is of another and a portentous quality over there."

"Why did you ask me to wait six months and then join you in Vienna?"

She turned her eyes on him with what he had once called her look of ancient wisdom. There was not an expiring flicker of youth in them, nor in the faint smile on her lips. He had thrown himself back in his corner and folded his arms; he had no desire to attract the attention of the passer-by. But his face was as white as a dark man's can be and his eyes were both stricken and bitter.

"To give you time to get over it," she said. "To write another play. To settle down into your old life and look back upon this episode as upon a dream, a wonderful dream, but difficult to recall as anything more substantial."

"So I inferred. And you have not the courage to marry me—here—today?"

"No, that is the one thing for which I have no courage whatever. In three months I should hate you and myself. I should not have even one memory in my life that I had no wish to banish—the sustaining memory of love undestroyed I may take back with me now. Courage! I could contemplate going back to certain death at the hands of an assassin, or in another revolution; to stand on the edge of the abyss, the last human being alive in Europe, and look down upon her expiring throes before I went over the brink myself. But I have not the courage to marry you."

Clavering picked up the tube and told the driver to stop.

He closed the door and lifted his hat. "Good-bye, Madame Zaffany," he said. And as the driver was listening, he added: "A pleasant journey."

Your Income Tax

Contributions to the United States, any state, territory, or political subdivision thereof—city, town, county, or independent of the District of Columbia for exclusively public purposes are deductible from gross income to an extent not in excess of 15 per cent of the taxpayer's net income, computed without the benefit of this deduction.

The value of real estate presented to a city to be maintained perpetually as a public park is an allowable deduction. Subscriptions by citizens to a fund raised for the purpose of underwriting an industrial plant to locate in their city would not be allowable deductions.

Deductions, limited as above are also allowable for contributions to corporations, community chests, funds or foundations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes, including posts of the American Legion, or the women's auxiliary units thereof, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, and the special fund for vocational rehabilitation.

Every church constitutes a religious corporation or organization for the purpose of this deduction. Donations to missionary funds, church buildings, pew rents, and assessments and dues paid to churches are deductible.

Deductions for contributions to political campaign purposes are not allowable. Amounts spent for lobbying purposes, the promotion or defeat of legislation, and for propaganda purposes, including advertising other than trade advertising, are not deductible.

Deductions may not be made for gift of alms to an individual for the relief of poverty or distress, but if made to an organization of the kind described above may be deducted even though the organization distributes its fund among such beneficiaries. Deductible contributions have been construed to mean money or property. The value of services to the organizations mentioned is not allowed as a deduction.

Deductions for contributions to religious, scientific, literary or educational purposes, including posts of the American Legion, or the women's auxiliary units thereof, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, and the special fund for vocational rehabilitation.

TEXARKANA SUIT OPINION IS HERE

Lawyers Say Local Court Case Is Parallel

Excerpts of the Court of Criminal Appeals' decision holding the Texarkana court invalid have been received here and will be used in the efforts to have a similar decision returned against the Corporation Court in Port Arthur.

The points of the decision, which they claim parallels their attacks on the local court have been outlined by Attorneys Rose and Johnson of this city.

Courts Are Similar

The Texarkana and Port Arthur courts are somewhat similar and the parts of the decision relative to the validity of the former court, to be used in the fight against the latter.

The question whether a court exercising only a part of the constitutional jurisdiction of the district court was governed by the provisions of the constitution applicable to the district court was three times presented to the Court of Criminal Appeals. It was twice decided by that court that an act of the legislature conferring the jurisdiction of both district and county courts over criminal causes on a criminal court, so as to invalidate a provision of the act fixing six as the number of jurors to try misdemeanor causes is up to the criminal court, because the provisions conflicted with the constitutional requirement that twelve men should compose grand and petit juries in district courts.

County Site Designated

"By article 704 of the Revised Statutes of 1870, all terms of the district, county and commissioners courts are required to be held at the county site. Other statutes have required, as they still require, the county house, jail and all county offices to be provided and maintained at the county site. Articles 705 and 706, R. S. 1879, being articles 1397 and 1399 R. S. 1911.

"It thus appears that Section 2 of Article X, of our constitution, what is now termed a county site was originally called the seat of justice in the county. Moreover, it appears that the county site in the republic and in the state of Texas has always been the point at which have been held the more important trial courts in the administration of justice. In the light of our constitution and statutes, it seems to us not to admit of any reasonable doubt that the words, 'county site' as used in section 2 of article X, of the constitution mean the place where the county offices are kept; and where the district and county courts for the county are held. Ascribing such meaning to the words 'county site' the legislature has obviously denied the authority to remove therefrom the courts, district and county, wherein much of the county's civil and criminal court business is to be tried and determined."

Texas County Powers

It is the contention of the attorneys opposing the constitutionality of the Port Arthur court that it is a county court. They point out that it takes on the aspect of such a court by taking jurisdiction in certain cases away from the court at Beaumont. In this last connection aggravated assault, gun toting and misdemeanor theft charges are mentioned. It is their contention that in taking these cases, committed in the city, to Port Arthur for trial that the jury can be picked only from the citizens of Port Arthur instead of the entire county.

More Life Saving Classes May Form At Gulf Plant After Girl's Rescue

Life saving instruction given over 200 employees of the Gulf Refining company several months ago when the company brought to Port Arthur a special car sent out by the bureau of mines, enabled Henry Maitre, 1211 Eighth street, to save the life of little Rita Boudreaux, 2-year-old girl, after she had fallen into a flooded ditch near his home during last week.

"Because the value of the life saving instruction has proven estimable in that case, it is likely that other classes in life saving methods will be organized at the Gulf company, and possibly the car operated under the direction of the bureau of mines will be brought back to Port Arthur," Charles Coleman, director of safety at the Gulf company, said Saturday.

The little girl who was pulled out of the water unconscious the other day would doubtless have proved fatal, as every second counts at a time like that," Coleman pointed out. "As it was, Maitre was right there to apply first aid and artificial respiration methods that brought the child around."

The simplicity of the methods for giving artificial respiration as taught by the men in the Gulf company's classes commands it to any who desire to learn life saving methods, the director of safety at the refinery here said. After numerous tests the school method of giving artificial respiration was adopted by the bureau, and this was taught the class of 200 Gulf company men by the instructors on the special car brought here, he said.

"Something like the little girl's accident is likely to happen anywhere, at any time, and everyone should know what to do and how to do it in such emergencies," Coleman said.

VIVID NORTHERN DRAMA

A more colorful setting could scarcely have been chosen for an outdoor drama than that presented in "Shadows of the North," William Desmond's latest, starring vehicle which comes to the Liberty theatre tomorrow.

It is a story of placer mining and claim jumping in Northwestern Canada and much of the glory of the beautiful timbered hills of that region is reflected in the film play.

The exterior scenes were taken in the Feather River country in Northern California, which is notable for its scenic beauty. The river itself has an important place in the story and it furnishes one of the biggest thrills in the play. The hero, the daughter of the leader of a gang of claim jumpers as his prisoner, runs the rapids in a canoe and the small craft is hurled down the swift stream like a shot.

It was a daring stunt and all of its action was caught by the camera. The fighting scenes were unusual and very beautiful.

We have seen wonderful why no film producer ever screened Augustin "St. Elmo" until the William Fox feature of that name opened yesterday at the Peoples theatre for a two-days run, with John Gilbert in the title role. Mr. Fox has done credit to Miss Evans' novel. To those who like charm and romance as well as plenty of action we say don't fail to see "St. Elmo."

It fairly radiates charm and romance. John Gilbert, we admit, is our favorite screen lover, since we

TWO FAST CLASHES IN FRANKLIN GYM REVIVE CITY BASKETBALL LEAGUE RACE FOR TITLE TONIGHT

George Actor Pronounces Self in Pink of Condition for Mill

Local Prodigy Has Confidence He Can Crumble Mat Rival

Rentrop, However, Claims Victory Over Clarence Eklund, a Feat Port City Grappler Has Never Accomplished in Squared Ring

BY BILL ARCHER

WITH his sight better than it has been since he returned to Port Arthur, and his strength returned to normalcy, George Vassel Actor Sunday declared himself to be in the pink of trim.

It's the first time since Actor came to town that he spoke of his condition. Usually George lets the other fellow do that, but yesterday, standing on Procter street "enjoying the biting northerly breezes," as he asserted, Actor told friends who halted to talk with him that he is "better than ever and rearing to go."

Match Set for Thursday

Thursday evening in Elks theater, Actor hopes to conquer an ancient foe in Charlie Rentrop, speedy light-heavyweight wrestler of Little Rock, Ark., whom he will meet here in a finish, no time limit match, catch-as-catch-can style, Marquis of Queensbury rules to prevail.

The grapplers, both conceded speed demons in their class, will enter the arena at the popular weight of 185 pounds. Actor's favorite weight, and the same that Rentrop is usually presented at.

Both Anxious for Battle

Both men have been anxious for a whack at one another for three years, and Will Fort, local promoter, has been anxiously attempting to get 'em together in the same ring for quite a long time. It's all settled now, the arguments are all over, the trade clinched, and if they don't wrestle, they both forfeit and lose gate money too. So Port Arthur fandom is almost guaranteed a real bill.

Both men recently have met the light-heavyweight world's champion, Clarence Eklund. The first time Rentrop wrestled the title-holder, Eklund was defeated two of three falls. The second time they met, Rentrop came down to the 175-pound limit, they wrestled for the title, and Rentrop lost. It was a bitter scrap, and drew thousands of Little Rock fans to the arena, where the mill was staged.

Mat History Almost Same

Every local fan knows the history of the Actor-Eklund scraps. It isn't necessary to repeat that George Actor made a brilliant showing against the champion, but was unable to get more than a draw finish with him, and that on their initial battle here, when the local prodigy weighed 185 and Eklund tipped the beams at 175.

With Rentrop claiming a win over the champion and Actor only a draw at their own favorite 185-pound limits, fans here have an idea they are assured one of the toughest no-time-limit bills Fort has scheduled since his advent in local sporting circles.

Rentrop in Good Condition

Rentrop in coming in as good a condition, Fort avers, as he appeared the evening he met and conquered Eklund. Actor says he feels better than when he and Eklund wrestled a draw. Both of them will be 1,000 per cent better than when the champion conquered them.

Ticket sales are booming, and the dispensers at Eagle's Barber and Bryan Tailoring shops are handing 'em out as fast as they're called for. The indications are that all ringside and box reservations will be sold long before Thursday. Arrangements to have the building warmly heated are complete, and the ringside seats will go up Thursday morn.

The curtain rings up at 8 o'clock, with several snappy prelims on tap to spike the program.

THE NUT CRACKER

Babe Ruth is not considered a safe driver in Massachusetts. Most pitchers will tell you he isn't a safe driver anywhere.

The news dispatches announce that a Chicago girl set a record for the 100-yard dash but failed to add whether she got her man.

The fresh young man of today has paraphrased it to: "Don't give me any of your lipstick."

Not that we mean to make light of tragedy, but will someone explain how it was possible to hurt a prize fighter by hitting him on the head?

Ad Stone, Fistic Product, Has Earmarks of Real Star

By JOE WILKINS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 21.—The next time one of these petulant pacifists tries to end a debate on the spoils of war by demanding to know in his characteristically manner, just what in heck America got out of the recent rumrums, anyhow, shut him up this way:

"A couple of pretty fair prize fighters."

Now, maybe this isn't much to brag about and possibly it isn't exactly what the idealists had in mind when they set out to make the world safe for democracy, but it's something—especially in a country that has developed a million dollar fight appetite.

We'll pass light over Bob Martin, Augie Ratner, Ray Asher and Sergeant Ray Smith, fistic products of the war, who don't with a sort of patriotic splendor right after the war, and then feed into the security.

Gene Tunney, too, needs no further introduction, though the light heavyweight champion of the A. E. F., and present holder of the same title among American professional fighters, rather importantly in this case.

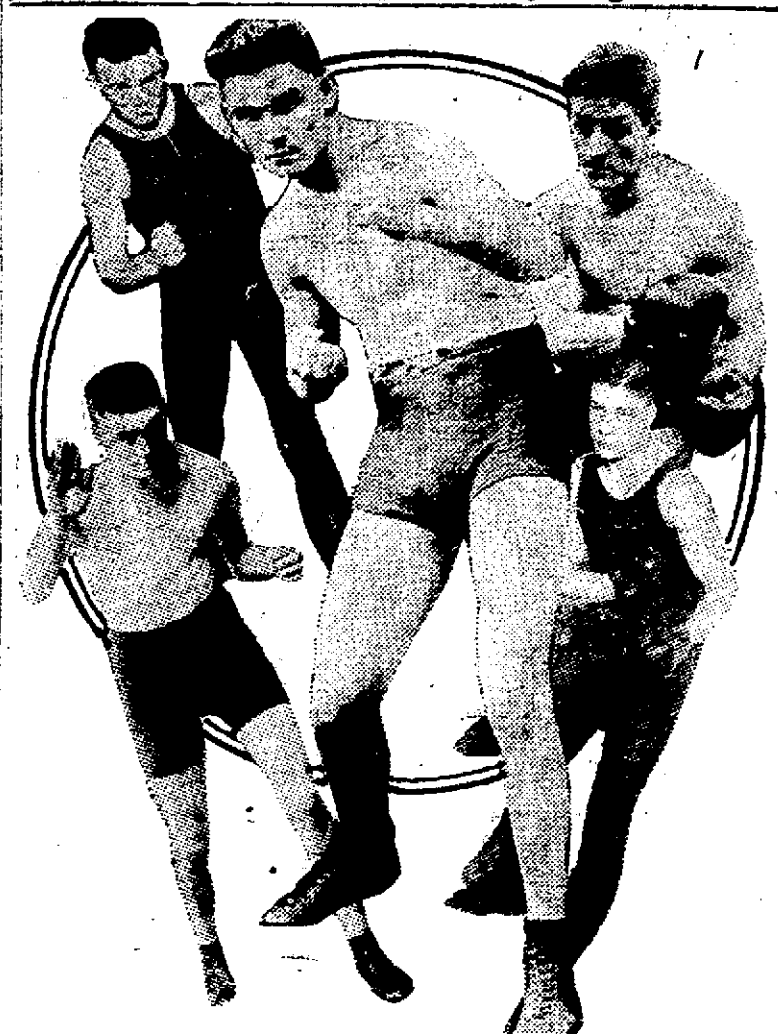

We come now to Stanley Adams Stone, young Philadelphia, who is currently making startling and significant gestures in the 175-pound division, having decisively conquered opposition of the caliber of Mike Burke and Billy Shale, not to mention others more or less formidable.

Has Dempsey's Style

Ad Stone, as he is known to the ring, enlisted and went overseas with two older brothers, Enoch and William, both fighters. Enoch, as "Battling Ryan," made quite a creditable record as a middleweight in Pennsylvania. Enoch was badly wounded and forced to retire. William was more fortunate and now serves as Ad's sparring partner.

Stone was a mere youth when he maneuvered himself into the army. Today he is only 22 years old, the youngest light heavyweight in the game, excepting Strickling, the Georgian. He has been fighting professionally less than two years. He is remarkably well built and it will

Gibbons Elated Over Return Scrap Says Kane

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Tommy Gibbons is looking for a fight or two before his second attempt at Jack Dempsey, but he can't get any action at all.

So mourns Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager, who is in Chicago brandishing an official looking document which, he claims, is a contract with Tex Rickard for the return fight.

"I have asked Rickard to send us up against anybody, but not a chance," Kane said.

"There are two light-heavyweights making a lot of noise in the east—Tunney and McTigue. But neither of them will give us a tumble."

Gibbons is billed to meet "Chuck" Wiggins at Miami, Fla., January 21, but difficulties in the southern city may cause cancellation of the bout.

"Tommy is sure he can lick Dempsey," the manager continued. "And is tickled to death at the chance that is being given him to prove it."

A military expert insists America is insufficiently armed, . . . showing that he has never been to Hollywood.

A football coach gets results from the material at hand according to his ability as a coach plus the power of personality.

Some compliment to the Navy coach, not unusual, however, for Don Fordell, who always turns out well rounded citizens.

Billy Evans SAYS

In football the coach plays a more prominent part than the director of any other sport. The greatest baseball manager in all the world cannot win a pennant in the major leagues with minor league material. He must have the stuff. In football, while a great coach cannot do big things with poor material, he can make greater progress with the talent at hand than the baseball leader. It is possible to take a big, husky athlete with ability and make him a gridiron star inside of a year. This is not the case in baseball.

Coast critics predicted that Washington would win by two touchdowns. The fine play of the Navy, which gave the eastern team a tie, certainly upset the dope.

What I mean to say is that a team with great possibilities is often just a mass aggregation, because the coach was unable to make the most of the opportunity. Often an inferior team properly coached is the victor over a team that is potentially much stronger. This feature of play seems to have been proved in the recent meeting between the Navy and Washington. While not familiar with the ability of any of the coaches on the coast except Smith, I simply know that Washington was played to tie by a team that ranked away down in the eastern list, with Washington rated second best on the coast.

Football experts on the coast seem satisfied that the outstanding feature of the game was the contrast in the play of the two teams from the coaching standpoint. A Los Angeles critic in commenting on the outcome of the game said: "The only phase of the advance dope that was overlooked was the difference in coaching. Had Washington been coached by Bob Fowell and the Navy coached by Enoch Bagshaw, Washington would have won by four touchdowns. Potentially Washington was twice as strong as the Navy."

Compared man for man it was like a creek heavyweight against a middleweight. No one dreamed there was such a difference in the coaching."

RHEUMATIC NEURITIS

LEAVES YOU FOREVER

Every druggist in this county is authorized to say to every rheumatic sufferer that if a full pint bottle of Allenrin, the sure conqueror of rheumatism, does not show the way to stop the agony, reduce swollen joints and do away with even the slightest twinges of rheumatic pain, he will gladly return your money without comment.

Allenrin has been tried and tested for years, and really marvelous results have been accomplished in the most severe cases where the suffering and agony was intense and pitiable and where the patient was helpless.

Mr. James H. Allen, the discoverer of Allenrin, who for many years suffered the torments of acute rheumatism, desires all sufferers to know that he does not want a cent of any one's money unless Allenrin decisively conquers the worst of all diseases, and he instructs druggists to guarantee it as above in every instance.

CAGING LEAGUE OPENS CIRCUIT

State High School Race on in Full Swing

Special to The News.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 21.—Inter-scholastic basketball games are now being played off between the schools in the various counties of the state, preparatory to championship matches later, according to Roy B. Henderson, son of the Interscholastic League of the University of Texas.

The league has charge of arranging and promoting contest games between schools all over the state, and there are now more than 100 schools which belong to the organization. The state is divided into 32 districts, each of these districts made up of several counties. The champion team for each county must be decided by February 1.

Between February 1 and February 16, the district championships will be played off. From then until March 7 and 8, the bi-district matches will be played. These will be arranged by the league. This will leave 16 champion teams to play in Austin March 7 and 8, at which time the championship will be decided.

The league has just closed a football season in which Abilene High was victorious. In 1921 El Paso High won the basketball championship. The winner of the tournament in 1922 was later disqualified by the league. Last year Oak Cliff high school of Dallas held the championship.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Everybody might have known that Mother Goose would be home for the Market Town Fair, even if she missed the circus.

But everybody in Daddy Gander Land was so excited about it, they never gave her a thought at all. Not even Daddy Gander or the Twins.

Daddy was so busy carrying things to the Fair on his magic dust-pub, he hadn't time to eat his meals properly, and I am sure that the cook stove in the Christmas tree house that the Twins lived in hadn't had a fire in it for a week. Every body was eating pick-me-ups off the corner of the kitchen table.

First there was the Pieman's wares to be taken over to the lunch counter at the Fair grounds. For the Pieman was going to sell coffee and doughnuts and wacky sandwiches as well as pies.

Then there was Dame Trot who was having a butter and egg stand. She broke so many eggs on the way when she carried them that Nancy and Nick and Daddy Gander took her whole stock over for her in perfect condition.

And the Tormaker had a prize stand where he gave away dolls and drums, if you were smart enough to guess the next number on a big wheel.

Well, the day of the Fair dawned bright and clear and everybody in Daddy Gander Land was up at 6 in order to get an early start.

And you may be sure that things at home got much more than a flick and a promise as far as work went. Breakfast dishes were washed and dried without rinsing and stuck away in cupboards. Beds were made up as lumpy as anything and half of them weren't so much as aired.

And as for sweeping! Well, I may as well tell you right here that there was no sweeping done at all outside or in!

And by 9 o'clock everybody was off to the Market Town Fair, from Mother Hubbard's dog to the five little pigs.

Nancy and Nick liked the Ferris Wheel and the Perk-me-Round best of all and they were having such a gorgeous time that houses and housekeeping were as far from their minds as China.

Nobody noticed a little shadow pass the sun and float overhead toward Daddy Gander Land.

It was Mother Goose returning from her travels on her magic broom.

The first thing she saw was the sign which said, "Daddy Gander—his Land." When she went away it had said—this same sign said—"Mother Goose—Her Land."

"I'm!" she remarked grimly.

And the next thing she saw were the unswept walks and the crooked dusty doorways!

"I'm!" she remarked more grimly. If there was anything she liked it was order.

And every second she was getting crosser and crosser.

But suddenly something popped into her head. It was the Market Town Fair. What a good time everyone was having when she had looked down out of the sky!

She began to smile and then to chuckle.

"When the cat's away the mouse will play!" she nodded. "And I don't blame them. From now on I'm going to make them love me as well as they do Daddy Gander. And off to the Fair she flew on her broom.

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

CHAPTER 30
Gilgamesh the Hero

Among the heroes people talked about in the Land of Two Rivers was one named Gilgamesh. He was said to be half-god and half-human.

Here is a story about his birth:

"A certain king," was warned that his daughter would become the mother of a son, and that this son would take away his throne. The king was fearful and ordered his daughter to be locked in a tower.

"After a while Gilgamesh was born in the tower. The king's servants knew their master would be very angry if he learned of this. They picked up the baby and flung him out of the window.

"As the infant was falling through the air, he was seized by an eagle. The bird carried him off to a garden, where he was cared for by a peasant. When he grew to manhood, he took away the throne from the king."

A great poem about Gilgamesh was written on twelve slabs of clay. Part of the story in this poem follows:

"Gilgamesh was a stern ruler, and some of his people complained to the gods. One of the gods then made a man called Eabani, who was expected to overthrow the king.

"Eabani was half-wild and lived among the beasts. Gilgamesh heard about him. He told a beautiful woman to go and lure him to the palace. This was done and instead of fighting each other, the king and Eabani became friends.

"Gilgamesh was such a strong hero that the goddess Ishtar fell in love with him. She asked him to be her mate, but he refused. Then the goddess flew into a rage. She asked her father to make a fierce bull and to send it against the person who had spurned her.

"The father did as his daughter asked.

"Eabani helped his friend in the fight, which was long and hot. Finally Gilgamesh plunged a sword into the bull, killing it, much to the surprise of the gods."
